By Forbes H. Brown

A large group of the Submarine Flotilla is present in the Golden Gate to-day. The harbor is filled with vessels, and the coast is crowded with people. The fleet is in perfect order, and the men are in high spirits. The sea is calm, and the air is fresh and invigorating. The scene is one of great activity and excitement. The men are busy with their work, and the officers aresuperintending the operations. The fleet is to be inspected to-morrow, and the men are preparing for the inspection with all possible care. The fleet is to be seen at noon, and the inspection will be completed at 2 o'clock. The fleet will then proceed to the Golden Gate, and the men will be put through their paces. The fleet is to be inspected by the Secretary of the Navy, and the inspection will be a splendid one. The fleet is to be seen at noon, and the inspection will be completed at 2 o'clock. The fleet will then proceed to the Golden Gate, and the men will be put through their paces. The fleet is to be inspected by the Secretary of the Navy, and the inspection will be a splendid one.