THE MAKING OF A MAN O’WAR’S MAN

The Navy Department is engaged in an active effort to fill the places of the men sent to the Pacific Coast. A recruiting campaign is under way to fill the vacancies created by the recent withdrawals of personnel for service in the Pacific. The Navy needs skilled and unskilled laborers, mechanics, carpenters, electricians, and other workers to keep its ships in condition and ready for action. The Navy is also seeking to fill positions in the supply and ordnance departments.

In order to make the recruiting scheme attractive, Uncle Sam has decided on a campaign of education. A series of lectures, films, and other programs are planned to inform young men about the opportunities for advancement and financial rewards in the Navy. The campaign will include visits to schools and colleges, where representatives of the Navy will hold meetings to discuss the advantages of military service.

The campaign is expected to bring an increase in the number of applications for Navy service. The Navy is eager to fill these vacancies as soon as possible, and is working hard to attract qualified young men to its ranks.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

A study of the sea floor has revealed a wealth of information about the Earth’s crust and the processes that shape it. Scientists have discovered that the ocean floor is not a smooth, featureless expanse, but is instead covered with a variety of features, including underwater mountains, valleys, and ridges. These features are formed by the movement of tectonic plates, which drive the processes of seafloor spreading and subduction.

Scientists have also discovered that the ocean floor is home to a diverse array of marine life. Some species thrive in the cold, dark depths, while others are adapted to the high pressures and temperatures found at the seafloor. These organisms play a crucial role in the Earth’s ecosystem, and their presence provides insight into the history of the planet.
