In Next War Torpedoes, Assassins of Warships, May Decide the Issue

TORPEDO BOATS DISCOVERED BY THE SEARCHLIGHTS OF MEN-OF-WAR, JUST AS THEY ARE ABOUT TO DISCHARGE THEIR INGENIOUS MISSILES OF DESTRUCTION AGAINST THE SIDES OF THE BIG FELLOWS.

Most Improved Types Now Travel 7,000 Yards, and When Still Further Perfected They Will Consecutively Relegate Mighty Dreadnoughts to the Scrap Heap.

For the first time in Atlantic Fleet practice, the torpedoes were permitted to bear actual hits against the sides of rapidly moving battleships.

Uncle Sam's Gunners Achieved Nearly 50 Per Cent of Hits with These Deadly Missiles in the Atlantic Fleet's Practice off Provincetown.
