A discourse delivered by John A. Widtsoe of the Utah Agricultural College

The Farmer as a Busy Man

By John A. Widtsoe

A discourse delivered by President John A. Widtsoe of the Utah Agricultural College.

"The Farmer as a Busy Man" is a discourse delivered by John A. Widtsoe of the Utah Agricultural College. It discusses the multifaceted nature of farming, which includes not only the physical labor of agriculture but also the intellectual and managerial aspects necessary for running a farm. Widtsoe highlights the importance of education and training in the field of agriculture, emphasizing that farmers need to be knowledgeable in various disciplines to succeed. The discourse also touches on the economic challenges and opportunities faced by farmers, and the role of technology in improving agricultural practices. Widtsoe encourages farmers to pursue continuous learning and adapt to the changing landscape of agriculture. The discourse is a call to action for farmers to not only focus on their immediate tasks but also to think strategically about the future of their operations and the broader agricultural industry.