The International Labor Congress in session at Amsterdam. Delegates from seventeen countries, representing 18,000,000 organized workers attended. Samuel Gompers (O), President of the American Federation of Labor, and at the right of him the other two American delegates, D. J. Tolls and J. J. Hynie.

British troops from India arrived too late to participate in London's great Victory parade, so they had a special review of their own. A regiment of these dashing Turkey flyers is shown on their way to Buckingham Palace, where they were inspected by their Emperor, King George.

Left—You guessed it! Mr. James J. McCabe, a distinct improvement of New York schools, photographed at the airport, where he had all kinds of fun at the expense of Washingtonians.
