"RELIEVE THE WHEEL"

It has been my privilege and my pleasure to be your Captain for over twenty months. Today, on this 26th of January 1945, a new Captain will "Relieve the Wheel".

Nearly two years ago I told you how fortunate we were to commission this mighty ship and I told you of all the hard work and the drilling that we would have to do in order to make this ship an efficient fighting unit of the Fleet and ourselves a worthy crew for her.

You have not disappointed me in any way. You have done a splendid job. The New Jersey shoots well, steams well and performs well every evolution required of her. She is a smart ship. She is a fighting ship. We have accomplished this together. I am proud of you and your accomplishments. In the process of making this a fighting ship you have developed yourselves mentally and physically and made yourselves into better and more self-reliant men. You are salty man-o'-war men. Your families and your country can be and are justly proud of you.

Although censorship does not permit me to be specific, you and I know that our "Seven League Boots" have taken us a long way. You have earned the right to wear the American Area ribbon and the Asiatic-Pacific Area ribbon with three announced stars which number I am sure will be increased by several more for campaign participation up to this date.

It is a sad time in all Naval Officers' lives to leave their last big ship command. It is so with me. It will be most unusual if I ever command another ship. Yet, in my case, this sadness is tempered considerably by the fact that I have been "Skipper" on this ship. I do not feel that I will ever want to command another ship, because to me there will never be another ship to compare with this one nor will there ever be one manned by such fine officers and such a fine crew. It is very hard for me to say good-bye to you. I hope and trust that many of us will be together in the same outfit again even though I am not your Skipper. I thank you most sincerely for all you have done for me. I have known Captain Woolridge, your new Skipper, for many years and I feel confident that I am leaving the ship and you in most competent hands. I know that you will give him the same loyal, whole-hearted and enthusiastic cooperation that you have given me.

Good-bye and good luck to our ship and to each and every one of you.
