HOW AEROPLANES WILL APPEAR FLYING OVER ATLANTIC FLEET IN NAVY TESTS

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11.—For over a month now circles have been active at work planning a spectacular show of flying. The first of these circles is the one which has just been organized by the Navy Department. The show will be held at the North Point, and will consist of several flights over the Atlantic Fleet. The fleet will consist of a number of vessels, including the battleships New York and Texas. The flights will take place on May 15, and will last from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
