THE BROOKLYN'S WAR LESSONS.

Officers of the Gallant Cruiser Tell What They Learned in Cuban Waters.

New York, Aug. 19.—This was the event of the week with maritime affairs. The battle of the Spanish-American war, as far as the enemy's ships are concerned, will be remembered forever as the event in which the Brooklyn's action on July 30, 1898, which was described as a moral victory, was carried to a conclusion. The Brooklyn fought a gallant and successful battle against the Spanish fleet, and the result has been the destruction of the Spanish warships.

The Brooklyn's action was a brilliant display of the use of the large battleship in modern warfare. The Brooklyn, with her powerful guns, was able to hold her own against the enemy, and her actions were a model for the officers of the Navy.

CUBA'S POLITICAL FUTURE.

Major-General Fitzhugh Lee Discusses the Situation in the Island—Military Occupation.

General Lee, the eminent military officer, visited the island and reported on the situation. The report is a valuable contribution to the understanding of the conflict between the United States and Spain.

Lee's report is a detailed account of the military occupation of Cuba. He describes the difficulties encountered by the American forces in the island, and the progress made in the construction of military bases and the establishment of a military government.

THE OLD SPANISH CONQUERORS.

The Men Who Founded the Empire of Spain in the New World.

Fr. Luis G. de Guzman, a Spanish historian, gives an account of the ancient history of the New World. The chapter is a valuable contribution to the understanding of the history of the Americas.

MAY 1897:

The Spaniards first arrived in the New World on May 1897. They founded the city of Lima, in Peru, and began the conquest of the New World. The Spaniards were successful in conquering the New World, and they established the Empire of Spain in the New World.

August 1898:

The American forces occupied the island of Cuba. The situation was serious, and the American forces were outnumbered by the Spanish forces. The American forces were able to hold their own, and the situation was stable.

THE BROOKLYN'S WAR LESSONS.

Officers of the Gallant Cruiser Tell What They Learned in Cuban Waters.

New York, Aug. 19.—This was the event of the week with maritime affairs. The battle of the Spanish-American war, as far as the enemy's ships are concerned, will be remembered forever as the event in which the Brooklyn's action on July 30, 1898, which was described as a moral victory, was carried to a conclusion. The Brooklyn fought a gallant and successful battle against the Spanish fleet, and the result has been the destruction of the Spanish warships.

The Brooklyn's action was a brilliant display of the use of the large battleship in modern warfare. The Brooklyn, with her powerful guns, was able to hold her own against the enemy, and her actions were a model for the officers of the Navy.

CUBA'S POLITICAL FUTURE.

Major-General Fitzhugh Lee Discusses the Situation in the Island—Military Occupation.

General Lee, the eminent military officer, visited the island and reported on the situation. The report is a valuable contribution to the understanding of the conflict between the United States and Spain.

Lee's report is a detailed account of the military occupation of Cuba. He describes the difficulties encountered by the American forces in the island, and the progress made in the construction of military bases and the establishment of a military government.

THE OLD SPANISH CONQUERORS.

The Men Who Founded the Empire of Spain in the New World.

Fr. Luis G. de Guzman, a Spanish historian, gives an account of the ancient history of the New World. The chapter is a valuable contribution to the understanding of the history of the Americas.

MAY 1897:

The Spaniards first arrived in the New World on May 1897. They founded the city of Lima, in Peru, and began the conquest of the New World. The Spaniards were successful in conquering the New World, and they established the Empire of Spain in the New World.

August 1898:

The American forces occupied the island of Cuba. The situation was serious, and the American forces were outnumbered by the Spanish forces. The American forces were able to hold their own, and the situation was stable.