Stealing as a Fine Art.

Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow of Cincinnati spoke last night at Metropolitan Temple N spoke last night at Metropolitan Temple upon the subject, "Stealing as a Fine Art." The San Francisco Single Tax Society had the affair in hand and a large audience listened to a very interesting address. Mr. Bigelow said that one way of getting money without earning it was to take advantage of some unjust law which confers the legal privilege of robbing our fellow men. He said that the kind of expansion he believed in was that of taking the tax off industries and placing it on the land so as to make it unprofitable to hold the land out of use. The Declaration of Independence applied to industrial conditions, he believed, would bring more glory to the old flag than all the islands of the seas.

Ada Lewis, After an Absence of Years, Will Again Play at the Alcazar, but in a New Role.

507 FTER an absence of several years Ada Lewis, "the Tough Girl," has returned home to San Francisco. She went East with Harrigan 'way back in 1892 and her rise to fame in portraying the "Bowery girl" was instan-sad one, as she lost her husband, John Patr, formerly barytone with the De Wolf-Hopper company, who died in New York on the 29th ult. Miss Lewis immediately settled her business and started her young life.

"I do wish you would write just anything," she said yesterday in an interview. "This reminds me of when I first went to New York. I never know just I left here in 1892 and went East with Edward Harrigan, after he had received my mother's consent to go. I first appeared in 'Reilly and the 400.' They told me that I made a hit in the part. It seemed awfully funny to rise in the profession so quickly. When I was home here Despite Large Cash Prizes, Number fession so quickly. When I was home here in San Francisco I used to go on as a walking lady in swell ballroom scenes and the only parts I used to enact were nearly all thinking ones. NAPA, Sept. 13.-The Matthai murder

NAPA, Sept. 13.—The Matthai murder trial is proceeding in the Superior Court. The prosecution asserts that Stanley was killed without provocation. John M. Stanley, the first witness for the prosecution testified that Frank Matthai with a shot-gun ordered himself and other workmen off the mine. The next day he and George Stanley, deceased, returned to the mine in a cart. They found Frank Matthai there. Defendant laid the gun across the shafts, demanding "What right have you on this land?" Stanley grasped the gun harrels and a fierce struggle ensued, when Stanley fell from the cart and Matthai shot him in the head with a revolver.

months ago 200 enlisted men have deserted from the battleships Kearsarge and Kentucky. This unusual number of desertions has caused considerable comment in naval circles. It is ascribed by officials to the fact that the vessels are new and that the glamor which once existed relative to naval service has disappeared. An encouraging feature about the matter is the fact that only two of the deserters were men who had been enlisted as landsmen and were trained under the system adopted upon the recommendation of Rear Admiral Crowninshield. Mrs. Astor Isn't Hard Up.

Several years ago the late Payson Tucker, the railroad man, was on the mountain division of the Maine Central Railroad, and looked over the grounds of one of the stations. Nothing more than the usual conversation passed, and he returned to his car and went back to Portland. Nearly a year passed before he had occasion to call at the station again, and then he stepped off the car and asked pleasantly:

"Yes, sir; all that we need."
"Yes, sir; all that we need."
"Quite sure you have enough?"
"Yes, sir; there is not much to be done at so small a station."
"Well, I feared you were rushed and could not find time to remove that pile of old bricks I saw the last time I was here."
With that the general manager of the road stooped over the pile of bricks and without removing his kid gloves continued the work until the last one was piled up.—New York Tribune.

Mrs. Astor Isn't Hard Up.

One of the trustees of the Astor estate authorizes a statement to set at rest certain rumors as to Mrs. William Astor's financial status. He said she has an annual income of $50,000 from a trust set aside by her husband, and, in addition, she enjoys a large annual income from her son's estate. The securities set aside to provide the $50,000 a year have been so remunerative that there is a large surplus, and the friendly suit lately begun was to determine what was to be done with this extra money. One thing is certain, and that is that Mrs. Astor has enough to keep the wolf from her door for the term of her natural life.—Kansas City Journal.
