GOOSE LIVER BARBECUE

Is Artists All in Line Now for the Good of the National Democracy.

A number of champions of the plain the champions including the Mike Simons, stage manager of Hammerstein's Victoria; the Hon. Joe B'Gee Humphreys, the Hon. Kid de Saulles of South America and Yale, the Hon. Mason Peters, chairman of the executive committee of the Wilson and Marshall Theatrical League; the Hon. Blair Frazer the Hon. Frank Daniels, the Hon. Carter De Haven, the Hon. Eddie Pidgeon, vicepresident of the Poultry Club and national secretary of the Theatrical League and Miss Kathryn O'Neyll, got together in the public square at Broadway and Fortythird street yesterday afternoon to raise a flag to the height of the window of George M. Cohan's office, to pitch quoits, to dig into a back country paté-de-fois-gras barbeque and to hold a tug of war contest out on the town asphalt so that passersby thus might be argued into voting the Democratic ticket. The Hon. J. B'Gee Humphreys's long practice as announcer at some of the most exclusive prizefighting clubs in the country was of great help to him when he arose a number of times to chamoion the cause of the Downtrod and Oppressed. Humphreys made six or seven of he principal speeches of the afternoon. Miss Frances Alethia Delopoulo and the Honorable De Haven made some very great speeches. Ex-Gov. Cone Johnson of Texas also spoke.

Miss Frankie Bailey, wearing a tailored skirt of dark blue, arrived too late to hear the speeches, but the horseshoe pitching and village tug of war events that followed so won her, she said in a speech to the camera men, that henceforth she intends to give her young life to the cause. And the conversion of Miss Bailey to the Democratic cause is of greater political significance than appears

It has been an open secret in the councils of the party for some time that the national Democracy could look for little apport from the clique of Weberfields girls bossed by Miss Bailey ever since a certain happening during the old Weberfields days. One of the girls had given a party at which Miss Bailey assisted the hostess to pour, it seems and which was attended by three Princeton students.

Miss Bailey had been pouring for some ine when suddenly the three students were attacked, one after another, with nountain sickness. Then while convalesc ng the three Princeton men on very good advice, they say, remained here solely for the New York air. Attack followed attack and the crisis of their illness was not reached until July 4 of that year. When the three students finally did recover sufficiently to go back to see whether or not Princeton had closed for the summer yeartion, they learned that sure or not Princeton had closed for the summer vacation they learned that sure enough Princeton had closed.

Prolonged mountain sickness is looked upon as so serious a disadvantage to students at Princeton that when the inree finally did get back to Princeton they learned that their places had been filled. Woodrow Wilson was president of Princeton then and the Weberfields girls in time learned of this. One thing led to another and bitterness followed bitterness over the way the Princeton authorities had treated these three orphaned sons of a Pittsburg steel man.

Mrs. Putnam was questioned as to a collection of spurious coins found in her husband's safe deposit box and explained that for many years her husband had charge of taking up the collection in church, and made a practice of keeping all the spurious coins dropped in the boxes.

He had a great many before he died, she said. Mr. Putnam also kept a number of quarters and half dollars made in the year of his birth and these coins Mrs. Putnam gave away, she said.

SEEK A CONCEALED WILL. and, according to a man high in the councils of the Democratic party who did not wish to be quoted by name, the breach between the Democratic party and Miss Bailey has been yawning wide ever since the Baltimore convention in the midst of political stress and turmoil gives thought to the amusements and innocuous pleasures of the taxicab masses as you leading political leaders are doing as you leading political leaders are doing here this afternoon deserves the support of every one of us artists who live only to cheer by our art the classes as well as the masses. In the little domestic gatherings around my own heartstone I shall advocate your cause not only to a certain party but to his many gentleman friends."

Somewhat earlier than this the Hon. Carter De Hoven addressed the townsfelk Carter De Haven addressed the townsfolk from a Hippodrome dray which had been anchored out in front of the Cadillac, where the league has its headquarters. where the league has its headquarters. Mr. De Haven is against all the trusts except the theatrical trusts. Some of all very best arguments as to why an actor should be permitted to vote, no matter in what State he may be playing, were lost because Stage Director Mike matter in what State he may be playing, were lost because Stage Director Mike Simons selected this time to hammer into shape some stage braces that held the side banners to the dray.

"Think," began the Hon. De Haven. "how many good actors there are "Where?" yelled a bitter rival.

"Where?" yelled a bitter rival.
"Ex-Gov. Johnson of Texas, friends," cried J. B'Gee Humphreys after the excitement had died a bit, "ex-Gov. Johnson of the Lone Star State, the great cham this I mean, our national candidates."
Congressman Johnson spoke briefly on the merits of Democracy and the de-merits of all else. Miss Delopoulo also made a brief address. Senator Peters in his speech said in substance that he could beat Walter Kingsley at pitch-ing horseshoes and later he did it. And then the statesmen adjourned to be Cadillac for the barbecue, which was laborate and was repeatedly mistaken by enemies of the people's champions and elaborate free lunch and was maltreated accordingly

STEPHEN R. DOW JAILED FOR $146,764 "LOANS"

Warrant Against Boston Broker Charges Him With Theft of That Sum.

HIS COMPANIES LENT IT

When He Quit Treasuries of Copper Concerns Were Found Bare. BOSTON, Oct. 3 .- Stephen R. Dow, the broker whose rise from board boy in a banking office to membership in the Boston Stock Exchange was spectacular is in the Tombs to-night, hopeful that some of his friends will come forward with the $50,000 bail for his release. The outlook is dubious. Dow was arrested this afternoon on a warrant charging him with stealing $146,761 from the treasuries of the Franklin

Copper Mining Company and the Algomah Copper Mining Company, of which he was president. The warrant followed an investigation by the District Attorney's office of complaints of stockholders that they con-sidered Dow guilty of "looting." The warrant names twelve dates beween February 16, 1911, and August 17, 1912, as occasions when Dow stole from the Franklin company sums totalling $103,764. The alleged thefts from the Algomah company were on five dates between July 18, 1910, and April 8, 1912, and the total was $43,000. When Dowresigned as president of the Franklin, Algomah, North Lake and Indiana companies a few days ago it was discovered that the treasuries were empty. The explanation was that nearly $300,000 had been "borrowed" by Dow & Co. of Stephen R. Dow & Co. The statement that directors of the companies, practically the same, had

The statement that directors of the companies, practically the same, had approved of loans to Dow was denied by them. The directors were questioned by the District Attorney yesterday and a warrant applied for this morning.

That the police wanted him was learned by Dow and he went to headquarters accompanied by Fred Williams, his counsel and assignee of the Dow firm, and surrendered. In court he pleaded not guilty. The case was continued to October 17.

Dow has been conspicuous in copper circles and his name was on all lips when Indiana and North Lake made sensational advances upon drill reports in 1910.

A little more than a year ago, it is said, Dow appealed for assistance and several exchange houses advanced $100,000 and secured the consent of twenty banks holding Dow collateral to refrain from sudden liquidation. Recently Dow stocks weakened rapidly and his firm made an assignment, which was followed yesterday by Dow's expulsion from the exchange. The liabilities of the firm are said to be about $500,000.

Dow is 40 years old, married, and resides in Brookline.

Anna Held, who recently divorced Florenz Ziegfeld, filed complaint in the Supreme Court yesterday to recover $2,700 from her Court yesterday to recover $2,700 from her ex-husband. She said Ziegfeld made notes aggregating $10,000 at Paris on August 16, 1910. All the notes were due within a year but Miss Heid alleges $2,700 is still unpaid. The notes were made by Ziegfeld after unsuccessful play at baccarat and roulette at Monte Carlo and elsewhere.

Plays and Players.

The 100th performance of "The Passing Show of 1912" and "The Ballet of 1830" was celebrated yesterday afternoon at the Winter Garden by a reunion of former players at that theatre. In the cabaret scene in the second act of "The Passing Show" Jose Collins, Mile. Dazie, the Dolly Sisters, Martin Brown and Melville Ellis

John Mason, who made merely a verbal arrangement with Charles Frohman for his appearance in the Bernstein play "The At-tack." signed contracts yesterday to remain under Mr. Frohman's management for the next five years.

George M. Cohan has invited the members of all the companies now playing in New York to be his guests at a special "Little Millionaire" matinee at the Grand Opera House this afternoon. Frances Demarest is now singing the prima donna role in "My Best Girl" at the Park Theatre, replacing Olive Urich. A other newcomer in the cast is Maude Ramond, who has a song by Irving Berlin. It was decided yesterday at the Frohman ffices that Miss Burke's engagement at the Lyceum Theatre in "The 'Mind the Paint' Girl' shall be extended through November.
