

SECTION 4
EIGHT PAGES

The Sun.

NEW YORK, SUNDAY, JANUARY 7, 1917.
Copyright, 1917, by the Sun Printing and Publishing Association.

PICTORIAL
MAGAZINE

NAVY'S SACRIFICE NOT IN VAIN

NEW BATTLESHIP TEXAS, SEEN FROM THE MANHATTAN BRIDGE.

This 27,000 ton superdreadnought, most efficient of the first line, gained many of her records in firing at the wreck of the old Texas (renamed the San Marcos) in Chesapeake Bay. The photograph is one of the most unusual ever taken.

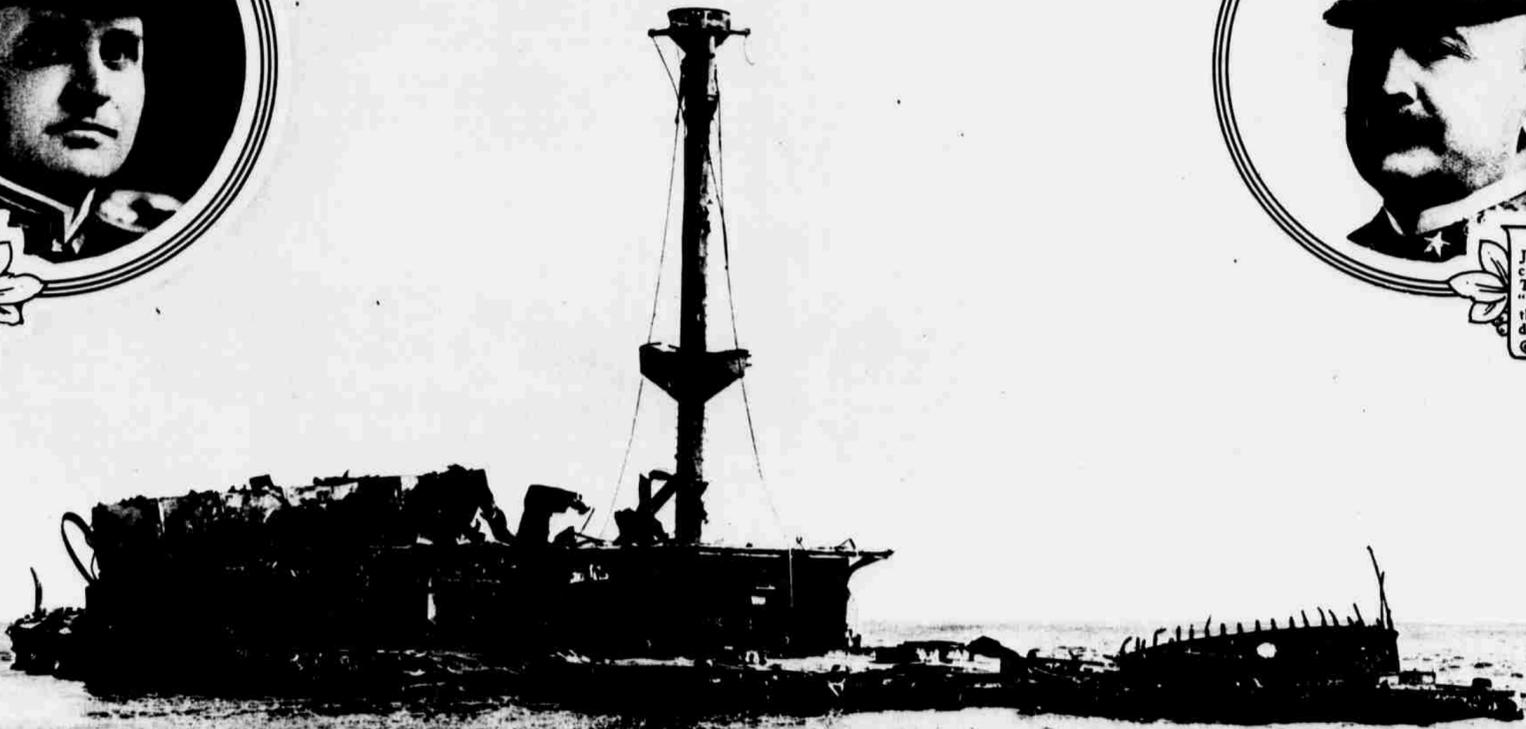

Copyright E. Muller, Jr., New York.

Daniel W. Wurtsbaugh, commanding the new Texas, one of the navy's brightest men and formerly aid to the Secretary.
© Harris & Ewing

The late Capt. J. W. Philip, who commanded the Texas at Santiago. "Don't cheer, boys, the poor devils are dying."
© American Press.

REMNANTS OF THE OLD TEXAS, TARGET USED IN FIRE CONTROL TESTS OF THE NEW NAVY. NOTE THE OLD MILITARY MAST, THOUGH RIDDLED BY SHELL FIRE, STILL IS STANDING, WHILE AT THE RIGHT THE BASE ONLY OF ONE OF THE NEW BASKET MASTS IS LEFT.

Copyright E. Muller, Jr., New York.