One of Uncle Sam's New Subs, Superior to Any of Germany's

Uncle Sam has just launched in an eastern port several submarines the equal of anything Germany has yet produced. These two views show N-5 at her pier before she had taken her trial trip. There are some things in connection with this vessel and the others of the N series of submarines which the navy department does not care to have published. But it may be stated that these vessels are the superior to anything the Germans have yet shown.

Water Users To Fight Contract

Oregon, this 8th day of April, 1917. The following statement was given out today by R. E. Bradbury, member of the board of directors of the Water Users' Association: 'The action of Mr. Camp, former project manager of the Klamath project, in causing certain business organizations and individuals to formulate petitions asking for an investigation to determine the cause of his removal and asking for his reinstatement as project manager, has caused the directors of the Klamath Water Users' Association to take formal action in the matter of such removal. Mr. Camp is an employee of the government and his superior officers have seen fit to release Mr. Camp as manager of the Klamath project. There are no charges preferred against Mr. Camp, so far as we are informed, except as he has announced himself, and consequently no apparent cause for an investigation. His successor, Mr. Bond, has been installed as manager of this project and the action of the reclamation service in making the change is at this time satisfactory to the Klamath Water Users' Association. 'The reclamation service and the Water Users' Association are in charge of the Klamath irrigation project and any action taken by persons or organizations not members of the association attempting to dictate or interfere with the business of the association is not appreciated. 'The expense of an investigation to determine the cause of Mr. Camp's removal will necessarily be borne by the Klamath Water Users' Association and will prove of no value to either Mr. Camp or the water users.'

Speeches Filled With Patriotism

United States, and particularly mentioned the incident when President Roosevelt ordered the kaiser to withdraw his workmen from a South American harbor, which work had been announced as being done for the kaiser's personal use. Roosevelt gave them ten days to withdraw, and when he was informed nothing had been done, hastened the order that American warships would open fire on the works on a certain date—24 hours. The kaiser changed his mind and withdrew.

C. F. Stone brought out especially the work that must be done by those left at home on the farm, in the industries and otherwise. He followed Mr. Dezell's suggestion that debts should not be allowed to stand between boys desiring to enlist, and said that he had a nephew attending the university to whom he had loaned money and who had written him that on account of the debt he did not see how he could enlist. Mr. Stone said that he is going to write him that if he enlists the debt is wiped out and if he does not he need not expect any more money or help.

H. M. Manning predicted the downfall of European autocracy and the establishment of universal peace at the end of the present war, and made an eloquent appeal for support of the president. He said that while he did not vote for President Wilson, he respects, honors and stands behind him. Mr. Manning likened the character of Wilson greatly to President Lincoln, relating a touching incident in the life of Lincoln during the Civil war when all seemed dark, but who hung on to the end, freed the slaves and brought the war to a successful close.

R. H. Dunbar, city superintendent of schools, previously complimented by Postmaster Dezell for instilling the virtues of patriotism in the public schools for the past ten years, spoke of the present situation and the needs of a ready response by the people to the government's call.

Rev. W. E. Hambo, pastor of the Christian church, offered his services if they are needed.

The members of the Grand Army of the Republic, who sat in a small group towards the front of the hall, were often referred to and always brought a ready response of applause for their patriotic stand and work. The Woman's Relief Corps attended the meeting in a body.

The call for Recruiting Officer Fox to take a seat on the platform met with a rousing cheer and he was loudly applauded as he took his place.
