LIZZIE KICKS UP
HER HEELS. A

performs for the crowds at a recent agricultural show in York, England, by going Ned Gourdin of Harvard, one better
in the running broad jump, and clears a reported distance of forty feet.

Above — PULLS SIXTY-THREE TIMES ITS OWN WEIGHT. An interwellGHT. An interesting demonstration of a beetle's strength—the insect weighs ½ gram, the little cart weighs 31½ grams, yet Mr. Beetle dragged the load easily all over the place. If a 150-pound man were as proportionately strong he would readily be able to move a load of 9,450 pounds, or almost five tons.

Left—A DANGER-OUS PET. R. W. Scott, of Mt. Kisco, with Mingo, a three - months' - old Guatemala leopard, draped about his neck. The treacherous little feline, who nipped a piece out of Mr. Scott's ear a moment after this snap was taken, was captured before its eyes were opened by Mr. Scott while on a recent hunting trip in Central America.

A MODERN MADONNA. An appealing camera study of Mrs. Karin Ziegler, of Vienna, and her little daughter, that suggests the brush of an old master.

Right—MRS. LES-LIE CARTER, from a new camera portrait made in Paris where she is rehearsing in the Selwyns' production of "The Circle," Somerset Maugham's comedy which has created such a sensation in London the past year. "The Circle" will be seen in with an all-star cast New York this season which includes John Drew, Mrs. Carter and Estelle Winwood.

Left — PISA'S CHINESE IMITATOR. The Leaning Buddha, a twelfth century pagoda near Nanking, whose thirteen stories tower 100 feet high. The octagonal Buddhist shrine is twelve feet out of plumb while Pisa's famous 179-foot leaning tower is 16½ feet off the perpendicular. The Chinese tower would lean even more than Pisa if it were of equal height. Neville
